Our Processes

Coil Pickling

For more information, please visit: www.servosteel.com/pickling

Servosteel are proud to house the only independently owned coil-to-coil acid pickling line in the UK. The ability to procure HR dry coil and offer the flexibility to convert thereafter is a huge draw for our customers. Amendments to customer schedules can be addressed promptly with our short lead times. Furthermore we are happy to partner you during the procurement process to ensure that all your needs are identified and met.

Decoiling

For more information, please visit: www.servosteel.com/decoiling

Servosteel houses two modern decoiling lines, a BRONX and a SEKO. Incorporating the latest in control technology, we work to the highest levels of consistency and accuracy to ensure we meet today's quality demands. Processing material through to 12.5mm, with the option of a cut and load service, we aim for the best possible product to meet exacting customer demands.

Slitting

For more information, please visit: www.servosteel.com/slitting

Our three slitting lines incorporate innovative features and automation resulting in slitting of the highest standard and accuracy. Maximum efficiency and productivity are achieved through a combination of high level operator skill, industry experience and excellent warehouse logistics. We have the ability to slit material ranging from 0.28mm to 6.5mm in thickness and our narrow slitting line ensures that even the narrowest widths are available.

Coil Recovery (through SCS)

For more information, please visit: www.servosteel.com/recovery

Our coil recovery line, the only one of its type within the UK, offers our customers the opportunity to improve the shape and surface condition of material that has been received in poor condition and/or bought as second choice. This in turn means that the true value of the material can be realised and margins improved. The process involves tension levelling to correct shape and surface brushing to remove scale, without the need for chemicals, acid or heat.
